Christopher Wray became the eighth Director of the FBI on August 2, 2017.

Mr. Wray was born in New York City. He graduated from Yale University in 1989 and earned his law degree from Yale Law School in 1992. He then clerked for Judge J. Michael Luttig of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. In 1993, he began working in private practice in Atlanta, Georgia.

Mr. Wray began his Department of Justice career in 1997 as an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Georgia, where he prosecuted cases ranging from public corruption to gun trafficking and financial fraud. In 2001, he joined the Office of the Deputy Attorney General, where he served as associate deputy attorney general and then principal associate deputy attorney general, with oversight responsibilities spanning the full Department.

In 2003, Mr. Wray was nominated by President George W. Bush to serve as assistant attorney general for the Criminal Division. In addition to overseeing criminal matters, Mr. Wray played a key role in the evolving national security mission of the Department. He also served on the President's Corporate Fraud Task Force and supervised the Enron Task Force and other major national and international fraud investigations. At the conclusion of his tenure, Mr. Wray was awarded the Edmund J. Randolph Award, the Department of Justice's highest award for leadership and public service.

After leaving the Department of Justice in 2005, Mr. Wray returned to private practice at the law firm King & Spalding, where he chaired the Special Matters and Government Investigations Practice Group.

MICHAEL E. HOROWITZ
Chair

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR AND THE VICE CHAIR

Welcome to the annual awards ceremony of the Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency. Today we honor members of our community who performed extraordinary work during the past year that improved the performance of the organizations they oversee, and made our country stronger.

Each year, the approximately 14,000 staff at our 73 Inspector General (IG) offices perform thousands of audits, investigations, inspections, evaluations, and reviews which help ensure accountability and efficiency in government operations and save taxpayers billions of dollars. It is a humbling challenge for the CIGIE award committees to determine from such a diverse, outstanding body of work which nominations are most deserving of receiving recognition. As you can see from reviewing the program booklet, this year's recipients have distinguished themselves by performing truly challenging and innovative oversight efforts that have had a substantial and important impact. Congratulations to each of you for your remarkable achievements, as well as for being outstanding representatives of the entire IG community and for demonstrating through your commitment to public service, professionalism, and an exceptional quality of work what a strong and dedicated staff we have in the IG community.

ALLISON C. LERNER
Vice Chair

We are extremely proud to be able to join with the IG community today in recognizing your accomplishments. The challenges that we often face in conducting effective oversight are many, and the results are not always welcomed, but through your efforts the American people are better served by the organizations you oversee. Thank you for your immeasurable contributions and congratulations again on your well-deserved awards.

In Memory of Senator John Glenn

Since CIGIE's last annual awards ceremony, Senator John Glenn passed away. In honor of his memory and his support for the Federal Inspectors General, CIGIE would like to share with the IG community the below edited letter from CIGIE Chair Michael E. Horowitz and Vice Chair Allison C. Lerner, which was sent upon Senator Glenn's passing to the John Glenn College of Public Affairs at the Ohio State University on behalf of CIGIE's members.

John Glenn will forever be heralded as a true American patriot who served his country over a lifetime with the utmost pride and distinction. To the Federal Inspector General community, he will best be remembered for his work in Congress that helped to lay the foundation for today's robust Inspector General system. His support, advocacy, and emphasis on accountability and good governance over the past five decades revealed him to be a true ally to Inspectors General. On behalf of the 73 Inspector General members of the Council of the Inspectors General on Integrity and Efficiency, we wish to submit this letter of appreciation in remembrance of Senator Glenn.

As a Senator, John Glenn believed firmly that government could become more efficient. During his first of four terms, he turned this belief into action when he played a crucial role in the passage of the Inspector General Act of 1978. This Act created the framework of the current Inspector General system and established Inspectors General in 12 Federal agencies. Ten years later, Senator Glenn went one step further and sponsored the Inspector General Act Amendments of 1988, which, among other things, expanded Inspectors General to even more agencies. As a result of these two laws, Federal Inspectors General have been able to save taxpayers billions of dollars every year and secure thousands of prosecutions against those individuals who have defrauded the government.

In the years that followed passage of these two Acts, Senator Glenn remained a staunch proponent of better governance when he brought about other legislation of particular interest to the Inspectors General. He was one of the original cosponsors for the Whistleblower Protection Act of 1989 and the Government Performance and Results Act of 1993. Both laws aimed to reduce waste in Federal government programs and increase accountability. With these shared ideals, John Glenn stood decisively with the Inspectors General.

His subsequent actions in the Senate are a further testament to his support for the Inspectors General. For a Senate hearing on the twentieth anniversary of the Inspector General Act of 1978 and the roles of the Inspectors General, Senator Glenn submitted a prepared statement that described the difficulties facing the Inspectors General and their resolve to prevent fraud, waste, and abuse. He highlighted their recent savings for the taxpayer, using his respected voice to draw attention to the achievements of our community of professionals.

In one of his last sponsored legislative acts in the Senate, he befittingly introduced on October 1, 1998, a joint resolution, which later became law, to recognize the accomplishments of the Offices of Inspector General and to commend the workforce for their dedication and professionalism.

Even after retiring from the Senate, John Glenn's support and admiration for the Federal Inspectors General never waned. To commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Inspector General Act of 1978, he graciously appeared in a public service announcement video for the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency and the Executive Council on Integrity and Efficiency, which were predecessors to our current Council. Also in celebration of that anniversary of the Inspector General Act of 1978, Senator Glenn wrote an article for the fall/winter 2003 edition of the Journal of Public Inquiry in which he offered his personal insights and efforts into passing that vital legislation. In both instances, his sincere reverence for the Inspectors General was clear.

On the legislative front, Senator Glenn was active as recently as July 2015 when he wrote an influential letter to senior members of Congress involved in drafting the Inspector General Empowerment Act. He urged them to take action on issues affecting the Inspectors General, most notably independent access rights to records. The timing of his passing was a poignant reminder of his Inspector General legacy: Congress approved the Inspector General Empowerment Act of 2016 two days after Senator Glenn passed, and the President signed that Act into law eight days after America lost one of its greatest icons.

The Inspectors General are very grateful for the many ways that Senator Glenn championed our profession and our work. In 2003, the President's Council on Integrity and Efficiency and the Executive Council on Integrity and Efficiency created a new award, the Glenn/Roth Award for Exemplary Service, to honor Senators John Glenn and William Roth for their bipartisan support for better governance. This award, one of the most prestigious in our community, recognizes an individual or team whose work and behavior demonstrates outstanding achievements in furthering relations between his or her department or agency (or the Inspector General community) and Congress. It continues to be presented at our annual awards ceremony.

On more than one occasion, Senator Glenn expressed his pride for the work he did in passing Inspector General legislation. The Inspectors General are equally proud to have had his support over the years. We are truly fortunate to have had him as one of our closest allies in Congress.

We will strive to honor his work and memory by continuing to prevent fraud, waste, and abuse with the same tenacity and dedication that he exemplified over his lifetime of public service.
