Vice President, Education and Outreach

Partnership for Public Service

Tim McManus joined the Partnership for Public Service as Vice President, Education and Outreach in June 2006. In this role, he leads the Partnership's efforts to ensure government has the talent it needs to meet the country's critical needs. This includes overseeing Call to Serve – a vibrant network of more than 750 colleges and universities dedicated exclusively to promoting federal service – and working directly with federal agencies, the Administration, and Congress to improve federal recruitment and hiring.

Mr. McManus has testified before House and Senate subcommittees on the need to reform the federal hiring process and to provide a more effective utilization of student internships and other pathways into federal service. He is also a frequent contributor on the issue of federal recruitment and hiring on Federal News Radio, AOL Government, and other government media.

Prior to joining the Partnership, Mr. McManus served as Director of Marketing and Recruitment for the Corporation for National and Community Service, the federal agency that administers Senior Corps, AmeriCorps, and Learn and Serve America.

Mr. McManus also worked for nearly 17 years in a number of marketing and management positions in the nonprofit sector, including roles with National Association of Secondary School Principals (NASSP) and two national civic education and youth leadership organizations, Presidential Classroom, and the Close Up Foundation.

Mr. McManus is active in a variety of volunteer activities, community boards, and professional organizations. He received a B.A. in history and social studies education from St. Olaf College.
