

Doris G. Yanger, CPA

Doris Yanger is a Senior Auditor in GAO's Financial Management and Assurance Team. She has more than 15 years of experience conducting performance and financial audits for both the private industry and the federal government. Ms. Yanger is currently the Auditor in Charge (AIC) for GAO's revision to its Standards for Internal Control in the Federal Government, known to many as the "Green Book."

While at GAO, Ms. Yanger has gained extensive audit experience and worked on a variety of audit areas, to include GAO's recent work on the Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill and the related Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund. In addition, Ms. Yanger was assigned to one of GAO's American Recovery and Reinvestment Act state teams, was the AIC for GAO's work on the single audit process, and has worked on assessing internal controls for a variety of federal programs.

Prior to joining GAO, Ms. Yanger was a Senior Auditor with a private CPA firm in Northern Virginia and worked on the financial statement audits for the Department of Education and the National Technical Information Service. Ms. Yanger has also served as the Chief of Internal Review for the U.S. Army Installation Management Command in Yongson, Korea from 2004 to 2006.

Ms. Yanger is a native of Guam and holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science from the University of Hawaii and is a Certified Public Accountant.