

John Gartland
Director, Computer Assisted Assessment Techniques
Department of Defense OIG

John Gartland has been an auditor with the federal government since 1998. From 2012-2014, he was the agency lead for developing and executing a DODIG analytics proof of concept. He worked with several groups within the agency, but primarily with auditors, investigators and information technology personnel. This included the installation of software, design and execution of projects that demonstrated how software could be leveraged within the agency, and oversight of contractors that provided software and analytics support. In 2015, the analytics project transitioned to the Quantitative Methods Division, where he is currently assigned.

John has a Bachelor of Science in Accounting and Masters of Public Administration.
